

SECRET (UNTIL RELEASED)

STATE DEPARTMENT PRESS STATEMENT

Discovery of Additional MiGs in Cuba

We have noted the arrival in Cuba of a shipment of Soviet MiG aircraft of the FLOGGER model. The shipment augments the squadron already in Cuba. We have expressed our concern over this development to the Soviet Union. We have also noted how seriously we regard the build-up by the Soviet Union over the past year of Cuban military capabilities.

The increased military capability of Cuba and its implications in the region are the subject of an on-going Administration review. The Administration is preparing a package of security and assistance measures to be taken in the region and will announce these measures shortly.

SECRET

Declassified upon release

SECRET (UNTIL RELEASED)

STATE DEPARTMENT PRESS STATEMENT

Discovery of Additional MIGs in Cuba

We have noted the arrival in Cuba of a shipment of Soviet MIG aircraft of the FLOGGER model. The shipment augments the squadron already in Cuba. We have expressed our concern over this development to the Soviet Union. We have also noted how seriously we regard the build-up by the Soviet Union over the past year of Cuban military capabilities. With this further augmentation of the MIG-23 offensive capability in Cuba, it is obvious the Soviet Union does not intend to comply with the agreement of 1962. As a result of this violation and unless all these aircraft are withdrawn immediately, the United States will consider the 1962 Agreement with the Soviet Union and Cuba null and void.

The increased military capability of Cuba and its implications in the region are the subject of an on-going Administration review. The Administration is preparing a package of security and assistance measures to be taken in the region and will announce these measures shortly.

SECRET

Declassified upon release